Our Approach

Before any detailed work is carried out, it is essential that clear lines of communication are drawn and understood. Which is why Vehicle Telematics Solutions (VTS) will always declare a single point of contact. Who will have full 360 degrees of responsibility for the specific project, and its communication. This project manager will be dedicated in working on each customer project, from start to completion. This person will also act as an Account manager to help with any ongoing service, support, training and future requirements.

When taking on a new Telematics project, there are many factors to consider – it is not just about technology.

It will be the responsibility of the VTS Project Manager to work with each customer on every step of the proposed implementation. In order to manage the change and get the full benefit of the implemented solution.
